8 PEACOCK (THOMAS BROWER) A.L.s. 4pp. 8vo, dated from TOPEKA, KANSAS, Nov. 26, 1883, to R. D. BLACKMORE, author of "Lorna Doone", together with the ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT of a Poem entitled "THE BANDIT CHIEF" comprising 21 stanzas, written on 5 foolscap folio sheets and signed THOMAS BROWER PEACOCK at end. In the letter Peacock asks Blackmore to forward the MS. to the London Saturday Review and says "I learn that your beautiful romance, Lorna Doone has been published by an American publisher with numerous illustrations. I intend getting a copy . . .", £15 1883

"The Bandit Chief" is a poem about Jesse James the famous American bandit and gun-man. It commences "Tis midnight! and the moon full grown . . . " and ends, "Throughout his life and everywhere He braved each-all-man, Heaven and Hell".

As this poem was found among R. D. Blackmore's papers after his death, the poem is probably unpublished, Blackmore either having forgotten or being unable to send it.

Thomas Brower Peacock was born at Cambridge, Ohio in 1852. He was the author of a number of poems including "The Vendetta and other Poems", 1876; "Rhyme of the Border War", 1880; "Poems of the Plains and Songs of the Solitudes", 1888.

22 BRADSHAW (PERCY V.) The ART of the ILLUSTRATOR.
Nineteen portfolios, each containing text and 6 plates, devoted to a single drawing by one artist, showing the various stages through which the work passes from the rough preliminary sketch to the finished picture. Each plate is printed on art paper and mounted on grey boards, the accompanying text dealing with the artist's personality and technical methods and having a portrait as frontispiece. The artists represented are LAWSON WOOD, F. H. TOWNSEND, C. A. SHEPPERSON, BERT THOMAS, W. HEATH ROBINSON, FRANK REYNOLDS, CYRUS CUNEO, CHARLES E. BROCK, WARWICK REYNOLDS, EDMUND J. SULLIVAN, H. M. BATEMAN, DUDLEY HARDY, BERNARD PARTRIDGE. The 19 parts, folio, £8 10s. Press Art School, n.d.

A Series of practical lessons in the Art of Illustration, each portfolio being equivalent to a number of personal lessons by the artist himself. Water-colour, line, wash, pen and ink, lithography, are all represented and the subjects humorous, cartooning, book illustration, fashion drawing, etc.

PAINTED ON SILK.

23 CHINESE DRAWINGS.—A COLLECTION of FIFTY SUPERB ORIGINAL COLOURED DRAWINGS painted on SILK by a Native artist, illustrating the TEA INDUSTRY, the growth, harvesting, drying, blending, merchandising, packing and shipping, with views of native scenery, buildings, pictures of the workers, merchants, mandarins etc., etc., each drawing measuring 15 by 12¼ inches, mounted on thin boards and bound at the edges, the whole in one volume, 4to, half morocco, AN UNUSUAL COLLECTION, IN FINE STATE, £200 [Cent. XVIII].

In the collection the artist has told almost the whole story of tea, its cultivation in the hills, how it is sent down the rivers in boats to the merchants, where it is blended and stored ready for sale; how the tea is sampled by foreign merchants, the bargaining, weighing, packing, and transportation to the sea-going ships—all are delineated in characteristic native fashion. The draughtsmanship and colouring are of the highest order, and the beauty of the paintings is accentuated by their being executed on silk—a very unusual medium.

Lutetiae, Parisiorum, J. Dupuys, 1570

Demosthenes, the "greatest orator of antiquity", was born about 383 B.C. He entered public life as a speaker in the popular assembly in 355 B.C. and delivered the first of his "orations" in 352 B.C., directed against the encroachment of Philip of Macedon.

Clovis Eve "the royal binder" was one of the two brothers who did so much to advance the craft of book-binding in France during the 17th century. Among his patrons was Marguerite de Valois who, it is said, designed some of the decorative tooling herself.

Paris, B. Rembolt, 25th May, 1513

A BINDING OF RARE PROVENANCE, with fine bold impressions of the joint royal arms. Catherine of Aragon, first wife of Henry VIII, was the youngest of the four daughters of Ferdinand, King of Aragon, and Isabella, Queen of Castile. Catherine was first married to Arthur the eldest son of Henry VII, but he having died five months later it was agreed that Catherine should be married to Henry, Arthur's younger brother. A papal dispensation was obtained to legalise the marriage and when Henry VIII ascended the throne, at the age of eighteen, his first act was to marry her. Their subsequent life, their divorce, the embittered conflict between the Church of Rome and the English constitution, the disgrace of Wolsey and the creation of Cranmer as Archbishop of Canterbury—who declared the marriage null and void—are matters of historical knowledge. From now onwards Catherine was styled in England the Dowager Princess of Wales and lived in one of the royal manors; she died at Kimbolton and was buried in Peterborough Cathedral.

THE "BECKFORD" COPY.

"THE MAID OF SKER".

101 BLACKMORE (RICHARD DODDRIDGE) A COLLECTION of AUTOGRAPH LETTERS to his favourite niece EVA ("BARDIE, THE MAID OF SKER") comprising 13 items, some signed "Uncle Richard", and others "Richard" or R. D. B. together with the Autograph MS. of a story by his Niece, with alterations and corrections by Blackmore, and the AUTOGRAPH MS. of some ORIGINAL VERSES entitled "BARDIE IN BUSHEY PARK", also by Blackmore. There is a letter from Mrs. Blackmore to Eva, and 2 other items. The dates cover a period from 1860 to 1895, £20

The letters are mostly of a family character and show throughout the love and interest of Blackmore in everything affecting the happiness and well-being of his favourite niece. He tells her of the doings of the animals and birds at home, how his fruit is growing etc. In a pseudo 'document' bearing a wax seal he lays it down that " . . . it will be understood that Miss Pinto Leite is on no account to be detained among the eaters of frogs after Dec. 21; much less is she committed to the Saur Krautyers for her education . . .". He sends her a sketch of some chess-men and tells her " . . . Uncle Richard has made thirteen magnificent chessmen . . . you cannot tell one from another if you look at them for half an hour . . . ". The verses entitled "Bardie in Bushey Park" commence "Why you made me carry you, Bardie dear" and goes on to question why, if she is too tired to walk she has so much energy when it comes to play.

Miss Eva Pinto Leite, to whom these letters were addressed, was R. D. Blackmore's favourite niece, later inseparable companion, and finally his heiress. She was the original of the character "Bardie" in "The Maid of Sker", the work that the author considered his best.

"Brome's style is light and easy . . . His songs were extensively circulated in his own day, and are to be found in most of the Miscellanies of the time. He was a thorn in the sides of the Roundheads, and was a great poetical support to his party by his lively and satirical songs and epigrams. Izaak Walton highly eulogized him in the introductory eclogue prefixed to his poems . . ."—Corser's Collectanea Anglo-Poetica.

An early copy with all the Errata—except that on page 218, vol. I (which is usually the case)—uncorrected.

"The pictures in this book cover all the well-known public buildings of London—churches, banks, prisons, theatres, etc., capitally portrayed by Pugin. His work for Ackermann seems to have been his first essay in book illustration, but his architectural training enabled him to add great care and accuracy of detail to a bold and expressive style. Of Rowlandson the spirited figures that he adds to Pugin's background shows that his talents were not limited to the ludicrous and grotesque. With the happiest faculty for expressing character, he is equally at home amid a serious discussion of naval policy at the Admiralty Board-Room, or among the excited, gambling crowd of the Royal Cockpit. At Westminster Abbey or Bridewell, the College of Physicians or Billingsgate, everywhere he has seized on the essential features of the typical frequenters of the place. The book is a living and delightful record of the old metropolis . . . the London of Lamb, Jane Austen, Dickens, and Thackeray, of places and incidents that are now mere memories. You will find here the old playhouses—Covent Garden, Drury Lane, Astley's, and Sadler's Wells. You will find a picture of Doctors Commons, that recalls David Copperfield and Mr. Tremlow. You will find the Fleet Prison, with its memories of Mr. Pickwick, Sam Weller and Mr. Jingle. Here, too, is Vauxhall Gardens, where Becky Sharp so enjoyed herself . . ."

Cowley was the son of a wealthy citizen of London, king's scholar at Westminster, and scholar and fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge. Between the ages of ten and twelve years he composed several epical romances, but in 1641 was ejected from Cambridge as a result of the Civil War. Later, going to Paris, he became cipher-secretary to Queen Henrietta Maria and was employed on delicate diplomatic missions. He returned to England, was imprisoned as a Royalist spy and on his release studied medicine at Oxford.

THE LATEST EDITION.

200 ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA (THE) edited by J. L. GARVIN.
FOURTEENETH (AND LATEST) EDITION, printed on thin paper and profusely illustrated, 24 vols., 4to, cloth, brown morocco backs, top edges gilt, A FINE SET, SCARCE, £60 1932

In this latest edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, under the Editorship-in-Chief of Mr. J. L. Garvin, and thirty eminent associate editors, all the phases of this vast transition in human thought and affairs are for the first time assembled within the covers of one work. This immense undertaking has been carried out by 3,500 of the world's foremost scholars, thinkers, scientists, and inventors, each of them dealing with that aspect of the theme in regard to which he is the acknowledged authority.

The 24 volumes comprise 24,000 pages—full of live information and facts about the modern world: there is sufficient text to fill 500 average size books. Its articles on biography, for example, would fill 70 ordinary books; on economics and industry, 64; on history, 45; and on subjects of special importance to all whose interests lies within the British Empire, 75.

There are 15,000 illustrations. Never before has there been any work of reference for which so magnificent a scale of illustration has been planned, let alone completed: of full-page plates alone there are upwards of 1,500, many of which are in colour, besides 500 maps—in colour and black and white.

AN INDEX of 500,000 REFERENCES, makes any part of this great survey of world knowledge immediately available.

Seventeenth Century Engravings.

201 WIERIX (HIERONYMUS) PASSIO DOMINI NOSTRI IESV CHRISTI.
14 fine copperplates engraved by Hieronymus Wierix, illustrating the story of the Passion, Crucifixion and Resurrection of Jesus Christ as told in the Gospel of St. Matthew. The engravings measure 3⅜×2⅛ inches, bound in 1 volume, small 4to, calf gilt, SCARCE, £12 [ca. 1600]

202 WIERIX (H.) TWENTY FINE COPPERPLATES engraved by Hieronymus Wierix, of Saints and Sacred Subjects, measuring from 3⅜×2⅛ inches to 4¼×2½ inches, bound in 1 volume, small 4to, calf gilt, gilt edges, by Rivière, SCARCE, £12 [ca. 1600]

The above includes SS. Michael, Ignatius, Brigitia, Demetrias, Augustine and Nicholas, the Nativity, Crucifixion, etc.

203 WIERIX (H.) VITA DEIPARAE VIRGINIS MARIAE.
Engraved title and BRILLIANT IMPRESSIONS of the 20 copperplates, small 4to, dark olive morocco, gilt edges, by Riviere, SCARCE, £12 [ca. 1600]

Hieronymus was considered the ablest of the three brothers who flourished as engravers at Antwerp during the latter part of the sixteenth century. He was supposed to have learned the art of engraving from his brother Jan, whom he followed so exactly that it is difficult to distinguish their works.

204 WIERIX (JOHAN) [BIRTH and PASSION of CHRIST, and Death and Assumption of the Virgin].
16 copperplates (BRILLIANT IMPRESSIONS), small 4to, olive morocco, RARE, £15 [1602-3]

Jan appears to have formed his style by an attentive study of the works of Albrecht Durer, and has copied some of the prints of that master with a precision bordering on servility. M. Alvin says he is the truest artist of the three brothers and that he has the most originality and most style. His plates are executed with the graver, in a very neat finished style, and his drawing is remarkably correct.—Bryan.

206 ENTOMOLOGY.—HUMPHREYS (H. NOEL) The GENERA and SPECIES of BRITISH BUTTERFLIES.
With coloured frontispiece, title and COLOURED PLATES containing illustrations of about 200 varieties of butterflies, with Descriptions, royal 8vo, cloth extra, £1 7s. 6d. [ca. 1875]

An unusual copy complete with the necessary half-titles and leaves of Errata.

"Gibbon was one of the great writers of the century, one of those who exemplify in the finest way the signal merits of the age in which he flourished. On publication of the above monumental work, it was at once discovered by all who were competent to judge, that here was a new thing introduced into the literature of the world. His style possesses an extraordinary pomp and richness; ill adapted, perhaps, for the lighter parts of speech, it is unrivalled in the exercise of lofty and sustained heroic narrative. The language of Gibbon never flags . . . a military music animates his magnificent descriptions of battles, of sieges, of panoramic scenes of antique civilisation. He understood, as few historical writers have done, how much the reader's enjoyment of a sustained narrative depends on the appeal to his visual sense."—Edmund Gosse.

BURNE-JONES, and numerous woodcut borders and initial letters specially designed for this work by William Morris and not used elsewhere, folio, blue boards, canvas back, uncut, as issued, £280 1896

Limited to 425 copies.

WILLIAM MORRIS' GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT FOR THE KELMSCOTT PRESS, and generally accepted as the finest production of any modern press.

This monumental publication has many claims on the collector's attention, while its beauty is enhanced by its series of 87 magnificent woodcut illustrations by SIR E. BURNE-JONES. The universal appreciation of this book found expression when after the library of Tokyo University was destroyed by fire, the English scholars there acclaimed the "Chaucer" as a suitable key-book for presentation to the new library. Bernard Shaw gave a copy to Rodin as a worthy gift to a great artist, while a copy was numbered among Col. Lawrence's most treasured possessions.

A Large Paper Copy, 4to, half green levant morocco extra, gilt tooled and panelled back, uncut, top edges gilt, £5 15s. Edin., 1822

It was at the request of King James the Fifth, who was ignorant of Latin, that Bellenden (or Ballantyne) undertook the translation of Livy into Scots Vernacular. He had by 1533 completed the first five books, but as far as is known, did not proceed beyond this.

As a specimen of the ancient language of Scotland, and of the prose style of the purest of her early writers, this translation of Livy is peculiarly valuable. It is besides, unquestionably, one of the first versions of a Roman Classic executed in Britain.

Lady Montague was one of the important figures in the social and literary life of the Eighteenth Century, and is now chiefly remembered by her remarkable collection of Letters. She presents a vivid picture of the customs and life abroad during that time, and in her letters to Pope written from Adrianople (Vol. 11, pp. 59-63) is a detailed account of the PROCESS OF INOCULATION (called "grafting") FOR THE SMALL-POX as she had seen it performed in Turkey, ALMOST 80 YEARS BEFORE JENNER BEGAN HIS EXPERIMENTS. She was quick in recognising the importance of this new idea, and, on her return to England introduced the practice. Mr. Maitland was inoculated in London under her patronage, which prompted Steele, in his "Plain Dealer," 3rd July 1724, to congratulate her for saving "many thousand British lives" every year. On her death a cenotaph was erected to her memory in Lichfield Cathedral, commemorating her introduction of this important medical discovery.

"A Work of considerable merit"—Allibone.

The Author was the first to give a description of New Zealand after Cook. Savage went to New South Wales in 1803 and there introduced vaccination. Afterwards as surgeon on a convict ship, he visited New Zealand, arriving there in September, 1805. He describes the customs, habits and appearance of the natives, and in conclusion points out the advantages and desirability of colonizing the country. A native called Moyhanger accompanied the Author on his return to England, and was introduced to Earl Fitzwilliam, to whom the work is dedicated.

The Percy Folio was a manuscript in mid-seventeenth century handwriting, which belonged to Humphrey Pitt of Shifnal, Shropshire, where Bp. Percy found it "lying dirty on the floor under a Bureau in ye parlour, being used by the maids to light the fire". It is the most important source of our ballad literature and the basis of Prof. Child's collection. It also contains the 14th century alliterative allegorical poems 'Death and Liffe' (modelled on 'Piers the Plowman') and 'Scottish Feilde" (mainly on the battle of Flodden).

FIRST EDITION, with frontispiece by GRIGNION after S. Wale, and vignettes, 3 vols., small 8vo, contemporary mottled calf gilt, RARE, £7 15s.
J. Dodsley, 1765

His work made an epoch in the history of English literature, and revived the interest in our older poetry.

In its compilation the author had the assistance, among others, of Thomas Warton, Garrick, and Goldsmith.

In the Preface is the following acknowledgement to Dr. Johnson: "To the friendship of Mr. Johnson he owes many valuable hints for the conduct of the work."

OF DICKENSIAN INTEREST. As is known, after Seymour's death, his widow claimed that the idea for the "Pickwick Papers" came from her husband's drawings. Dickens easily disproved the statement, but in the illustrations to the above volume—published four years before "Pickwick"—the figure of the Angler bears a distinct resemblance to the Mr. Pickwick we know so well.

MRS. PIOZZI'S COPY.

381 SHADWELL (THOMAS) DRAMATICK WORKS.
FIRST COLLECTED EDITION, with portrait by Gribelin, 4 vols., 12mo, sprinkled calf extra, with bookplate of Lord Napier and his crowned initial on backs and sides, AN INTERESTING ASSOCIATION COPY, £8 10s. 1720

Of Johnsonian interest; formerly in the library of Mrs. Hester Lynch Piozzi, with a few neat marginal notes (some slightly shorn) in her hand, one signed "H.L.P., 1810".
Shadwell was at open feud with Dryden from 1682 and they repeatedly attacked one another in satires, among which were Dryden's "Medal" and "Mac Flecknoe" and Shadwell's "The Medal of John Bayes". Shadwell superseded Dryden as poet laureate and historiographer at the revolution.

With woodcut on title, small 8vo, original grey-green wrappers, uncut, SCARCE, £3 5s. Newcastle, 1819

William Ged was the inventor of the stereotype plate, which has done so much to bring the printed word within the reach of the poorest person, and without which the great newspapers of to-day could not be produced at the rate of thousands of copies an hour. The "Memoirs" tell of his struggles to overcome the opposition of the printing trade to the use of his invention. Owing to their hostility and the dishonesty of his partner Ged died in poverty.

432 IMPRINT (THE), edited by F. ERNEST JACKSON, J. H. MASON, EDWARD JOHNSTON, and GERARD T. MEYNELL.
Numbers 1 to 9, Jan. 1913—Nov. 1913, (all published) containing contributions by Professor W. R. Lethaby, R. Austen Leigh, Joseph Pennell, The Rev. T. F. Dibdin and others, with illustrations after WILLIAM BLAKE, WALTER CRANE, R. CALDECOTT, and others (some COLOURED), together with facsimiles from early printed books, and reproductions of woodcuts, paintings and engravings by old masters such as Van Dyck, Rembrandt etc., 9 parts, 4to, original wrappers, SCARCE, £5 5s. 1913

Printed by J. R. for T. Passinger, at the Sign of the Three Bibles on London Bridge, 1688

Valentine and Orson, an early French romance deals with the adventures of two brothers; Orson, who is carried away when young by a bear and grows up as a wild man and Valentine, who is brought up as a knight. Valentine meets Orson, conquers him, brings him to court and tames him. Other adventures follow.

The work was first translated into English by William Watson about 1550, and in this present edition the writer of the Preface says:—

> ". . . Herein is also contained the True difference betwixt Art and Nature; for in Valentine is Comprehended the Education of Art; and in Orson the true working of Nature . . . It is furnished with much state of matter, Elegancy and Invention. . . . Let no Man therefore think his Time ill Spent, or his Labour lost, where the Matter affords such Copiousness of Pleasure . . ."

437 VALERA (JUAN) OBRAS ESCOGIDAS.
With illustrations by FERNANDO MARCO, 10 vols., small 8vo, half red morocco, top edges gilt, £4 10s. Madrid, 1925-27

Printed by Thomas Creede, 1596

Sir Robert Filmer whose signature appears on the title-page matriculated at Trinity College, Cambridge in 1604, later joined the Royalists during the Civil War and was knighted by the King. Among other works he wrote "Patriarcha, or the Natural Power of Kings asserted", a manifesto which was sharply criticised by John Locke.

"It is Phaer's best-known work. Although not the actual first English translation, both Gawin Douglas and the Earl of Surrey having worked in this field, Phaer was the first Englishman to attempt the translation of the whole work."—Dict. Nat. Biog.

Douce, Malone, and other editors consider that Shakespeare was frequently indebted to this particular edition.

441 VIRGILIUS (PUBLIUS) BUCOLICA, GEORGICA, AENEIS, ex Editione PETRI BURMANNI.

Pym, Lord Willoughby, William Byam, John Hinde, Will Greenway, John Treffry, Stephen Tyner, Patient Trott, Richard Chandler and Thomas Marten, relating to the activities of the early settlers in BERMUDA, SURINAM, BARBADOES, ANTIGUA, etc.
In all 19 pages, folio, £32 1657-70

An invaluable series of letters of paramount Colonial interest revealing the hardships and difficulties encountered by the pioneer settlers. There are references to tobacco, timber, oranges, potatoes, and whale-fishing; the ceding of Surinam to the Dutch . . . "Resettling is hard, the island [Antigua] being ruined by the French and the Indians" Mentions planters in Barbadoes . . . "Money is as fluent there as in England, and taverns take nothing else . . . Spaniards have brought 500 negroes from the island at high rates . . ." In one of the letters from Lord Willoughby—who was Governor of Barbadoes and the Caribbee Islands—he mentions " . . . I may chance try my skill in Indian hunting. Their late barbarities have been such that they deserve no law." Another letter from him hopes for the association of the Earls of Manchester and Devonshire in connection with the new "adventure" of whale-fishing.

Inserted at the beginning is a duplicate impression of the brilliant portrait.

Wycherley who came of a Shropshire family, was educated first in France, then at Queen's College, Oxford. His first play 'Love in a Wood, or St. James' Park', brought him the favour of the Duchess of Cleveland, the King's mistress. Some years later he secretly married the widowed Countess of Drogheda, daughter of the first Earl of Radnor, and incurred thereby the displeasure of Charles II, who had offered him the tutorship of his son, the Duke of Richmond. 'His Miscellany Poems' led to a friendship with Pope, who revised many of his writings. Lamb classes him with Congreve as one of the best masters of 'Artificial Comedy', while contemporaries named him 'manly Wycherley'.

ORIGINAL HOLOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT

BYRON (GEORGE GORDON, LORD)

WALTZ

AN APOSTROPHIC HYMN BY HORACE HORNEM, ESQ.

THE AUTHOR'S AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT

Written in a characteristic large hand on 23 pages plus the front lining paper. The poem runs to 234 lines, the letter to the publisher 75 lines, and the title and footnotes 11 lines, totalling 320 LINES IN ALL. The remaining leaves are blank, 4to (8¾ inches by 7¼ inches) half red roan, marbled paper sides (watermark: Pine & Thomas, 1811), IN FINE STATE OF PRESERVATION. (1810)

£1,200

A MANUSCRIPT OF PARAMOUNT LITERARY INTEREST. The first published edition is amongst the rarest of Byron's works, and has sold at auction for upwards of £1,000.

The final form of the poem has an additional 14-line stanza (the second), commencing "Hail, nimble Nymph!" This stanza does not appear in the manuscript, and some of the printed footnotes also were added after this manuscript was written.

Lt.-Col. Sir John Murray, in June, 1940, gave the manuscript to the British Red Cross Society, at which sale it realized £1,155. After the sale, at the request of the purchaser, the donor added the following note underneath the bookplate of John Murray, Byron's publisher, placed on the inside of the lower cover:

> "This MS. of Byron's Waltz was originally in the possession of John Murray, 2nd of that name, and Byron's publisher. It remained in the possession of his son, grandson, and great grandson, 3rd, 4th and 5th of the name, till given to the Red Cross by the last named in June 1940." J.M. 30: 7: 40.

BYRON'S MANUSCRIPTS ARE EXTREMELY RARE.

BYRON spent the autumn of 1812 "by the waters of Cheltenham," and, besides writing to order his Song of Drury Lane (the address spoken at the opening of the theatre, Oct. 10, 1812), he put in hand a Satire on Waltzing. It was published anonymously in the following spring; but, possibly, because it was somewhat coolly received, he told Murray (April 21, 1813) "to contradict the report that he was the author of a certain malicious publication on waltzing." In his memoranda "chiefly with reference to my Bryon," Moore notes "Byron's hatred of waltzing," and records a passage of arms between "the lame boy" and Mary Chaworth, which arose from her "dancing with some person who was unknown to her." Then, and always, he must have experienced the bitter sense of exclusion from active amusements, but it is a hasty assumption that Byron only denounced waltzing because he was unable to waltz himself."—E. H. Coleridge.

DE-REQUISITIONING

Owing to the exigencies of war, many large country houses were taken over by Government Authorities.

The release of these properties, will, in many cases, cause some perplexity to owners in view of the social changes and domestic difficulties which have arisen during the past six years.

Many libraries in these houses have been sealed during this period, and Messrs. Sawyer will consider it a privilege to give advice on any matter pertaining to its maintenance or dispersal, and are prepared to give maximum prices for complete libraries, or any small collections of books of interest.
